

LATINOAMERICANA

LATINOAMERICANA, a new series from the University of Toronto Press, focuses on all aspects of Latin American literature, history, and culture from the colonial period to the present day. We welcome proposals for original scholarly monographs, edited collections, translations of important works, and critical editions of primary sources with scholarly commentary. The aim of this series is to publish dynamic, cutting-edge research that explores Latin American cultural production through an interdisciplinary and theoretical lens.
