

Apple Technology Seminars

Tiger/Tiger Server for Education IT

As technology directors and computer coordinators you have many challenges in supporting your institution's technology goals and initiatives: How do you stay current with hardware and software? What options do you have for desktop and mobile computers, labs, servers—and which are the best choices? How do you deal with interoperability issues? What are your peers doing successfully with technology?

We strive to stay in tune with these challenges and find ways to empower and inform you on Apple solutions. To that end, please join us at the Apple Technology Seminars for Education. These one-day, two-track seminars from 9am to 5pm combine presentations, discussions, and peer networking delivered by Apple systems engineers. These are ideal opportunities for key education technology staff to get informed on all the latest Apple products, technologies, directions, and solutions.

Who Should Attend

Key technology staff, such as technology directors and computer coordinators. These seminars are technical events—not sales and marketing presentations. Designed to focus on the technology issues and areas that you encounter daily, they are open to all education institutions, but space is limited.
