Antonio Paez is a full professor in the School of Earth, Environment and Society at McMaster University, where he divides his time between teaching and researching, focusing on transportation and spatial analysis. A civil engineer by training, he was adopted into geography and has become an acclaimed social scientist. Among his accolades are the 2010 Meredith F. Burrill Award of the Association of American Geographers for policy-oriented research, and most recently the 2024 Edward L. Ullman Award of the Association of American Geographers, for his lifelong contributions to transportation geography. Antonio has a longstanding interest in the societal impacts of transportation, and is currently part of the leadership team of the SSHRC-funded project Mobilizing Justice. He lives in Hamilton, where winters are long but growing shorter every year.
