

RESEARCH SEMINAR SERIES

Traditional Medicine, Ceremony, and Healing

November 5, 2025 | 12:00 pm – 12:50 pm

Room 164 Apotex Centre, Bannatyne

Dr. Amanda Fowler-Woods

Assistant Professor

College of Community and Global Health

University of Manitoba

Dr. Amanda Fowler-Woods is an Anishinaabe woman originally from Thunder Bay, Ontario but who has called Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada her home for the past 25 years. Amanda and her wife Melinda are mothers to 2 daughters, ages 19 and 7. Amanda is a faculty member in the College of Community and Global Health in the Rady Faculty of Health Sciences. Her research interests involve understanding the impacts of racism as a determinant of health, the use of Indigenous research methodologies, and the practice of anti-racist healthcare and research. As well she is a carrier of traditional medicines and works alongside a medicine woman studying and practicing traditional medicine work and healing for the health and wellbeing of Indigenous people.